

Communist capture of Mukden, capital of Manchuria, following the wholesale defeat of Chiang Kai-shek's armies, profoundly shakes nationalist China and has many Americans to think we have been on the wrong horse in Asiatic operations of the Marshall Plan.

Certainly the common people of Manchuria, and China itself, are not united behind Generalissimo Chiang. Despite the use of money, equipment and advisors his Nationalist government not only has been thrown out of Manchuria—without likelihood that North China will be threatened next.

The fundamental weakness of Chiang's government appears to be its reputation as an oligarchy of landowners and wealth, while the Communists claim to represent the common people by tradition landless and payers of rent to the upper class.

This may be an over-simplification of China's domestic problems, but it will serve as the truth if it opens the eyes of the American people to the full size of the tremendous problem facing us in the Far East.

The United States can not undertake to occupy China in order to take that nation an equitable and stable government.

Nor can we switch our financial and military aid from Chiang to the Communists. Suspicion of Russian aid settles that question.

The obvious answer to this dilemma is an ancient truth like citizens of the free republic of the United States must recognize now as in the past: That our independence and security must be maintained and it was won, by complete preparedness and threat of armed force.

Translating this into concrete terms: Since we can't depend on stable allies where no stable government exists, we must, in modern times, as in the case of China, we must establish and maintain naval and military bases close by to serve as dependable terminals for the outlying network of armed forces which protect our independence, America and her connecting sea and air lines.

And what we say about China and her section of the world may prove to be true also of Greece and the Mediterranean area. A shaky royalist crew aren't having much luck coping either with Russian-inspired revolution or a frankly disheartened and radical clergy.

To America it makes no difference. If China and Greece are resolved to make permanent battlegrounds of their respective countries we can't help it. All we can do is stand off shore on bases that will confine the conflagration while it burns itself out on the hearthstones of an unfortunate people.

Miners Love Their Maharajah, But Must Dig for Support Him

By JAMES THRASHER

John L. Lewis must have had a wonderful time at the United Mine Workers convention which closed in Indianapolis last night. He felt like the Maharajah or the Prince of Wales.

His faithful miners didn't quite follow the custom of the Aga Khan's followers, who give him considerable weight in gold. But they achieved substantially the same effect by doubling his salary to a fairly princely $50,000 a year, plus expenses.

Few of the faithful were so bold as to complain about Mr. Lewis' salary. The thought he should have $100,000 so as to top the pay of the President of the United States, who a couple of times complained of the unpalatable offense of taking their lead down a peg or two. Mr. Lewis magnanimously declined the generous offer.

Other members wanted to make his presidency of the UMW a life-time job—decide that it was in reality. The convention concluded in "the spirit" of that resolution. But since the job is Mr. Lewis' anyway, they decided to continue the democratic practice of re-election every four years. Let he be attended by this apparently, they elevated him to the rank of national hero by deciding that henceforth they will celebrate Feb. 12 not as Abraham Lincoln's, but as John L. Lewis' birthday.

The comparison between the United Mine Workers and a princely state is not entirely idle. Mr. Lewis is, economically, the absolute monarch of the union. It is he alone who secures their wages and benefits. All he asks in return for these blessings is absolute obedience.

The miners seem to pay the price gladly. It is not hard to understand their gratitude to John L. Lewis. There is neither a safe nor a pleasant calling. They have been severely exploited in the past. John L. Lewis has done much to make their lives easier. Even though his motives cannot have been entirely unselfish.

But Mr. Lewis overdoes the thing. To hear him talk, one would think that there isn't another tough and hazardous job in the world. One would think that in no other field of labor has the worker's lot been bettered in the last 40 or 50 years.

However, Mr. Lewis has set up boundaries around himself, and he has contracted to incite the miners from their fellow countrymen by a barrier of class-consciousness and group self-pity. The plans in the miners' minds that they are surrounded by enemies, and that he alone can save them, in the process, Mr. Lewis has made himself one of the most thoroughly unpopular men in the country. The miners may love him, but few others do. And in the field of labor his arrogance and lust for power have lost him not only friends but most of his own-time influence. So perhaps to one should be made the last consolation of a fat salary, a big house, a big car and a big dog. Certainly the miners don't even though they now will have to dig a little harder to pay for it all.

Chiang Turns to Cabinet in Political Crisis

Shanghai, Nov. 2 — (UP) — The Chinese cabinet will be called into emergency session tomorrow to meet a political crisis caused by Communist capture of Manchuria, reports from Nanking said today.

Some observers said the government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek might collapse as a result of military setbacks and a disastrous economic situation that has caused two cabinet ministers to submit their resignations.

The two cabinet members, Premier Wang Wen-hao and Finance Minister Wang Yun-wu, formally presented their resignations to the legislative yuan (parliament) today.

Previous reports said Chiang rejected the resignations when they were offered to him yesterday and had asked the two officials to carry on during the emergency period.

The officials told the yuan they were resigning because their currency reform program failed. The gold Chinese dollar, introduced several months ago, has dropped from 25 cents to eight cents American.

The American embassy in Nanking reported it had received a message from Angus Ward, American consul general in Mukden, saying that two national divisions of American consular staff were safe.

Communist forces completed the occupation of Mukden yesterday afternoon, the message said. It also reported that the Communists left only a small garrison and a security guard in Mukden and had sent their main forces plunging south.

One Communist force was reported to be 20 miles north of Ying-kow, where two national divisions that escaped the Mukden route were waiting to be evacuated by sea.

Another two divisions, along with the Nationalist commander and deputy commander of Manchuria, were reported awaiting evacuation in Huludao, across the bay from Ying-kow.

Communist armies under Gen. Lin Biao were expected to capture the two ports without difficulty and continue south in a drive to cut the Peiping-Tientsin railway and seize all North China.

Government officials admitted the Communists probably would capture the bulk of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Manchurian Armies and their equipment in the two ports. There is inadequate transportation to save them, one official admitted.

It was generally believed in Peiping the Communists would strike first at the rail line linking Peiping with its seaport and supply center of Tientsin, isolating the Peiping garrison and subjecting it to siege.

Government reports admitted that Yinkow would be abandoned soon. There likewise appeared to be plans for a heavy defense of Huludao.

Reports from Mukden said the administration has been taken over by political commissars and that only a security guard was left behind when the Communist Armies swung south.

A United Press dispatch from Peiping said that half of the 900 Americans in North China planned to remain in the area even if the Communists capture the city.

Virtually all businessmen and commercial representatives plan to leave, according to replies to a circularized suggestion from the American consulate that all Americans quit the city.

Missionaries, medical workers and educational groups plan to stay.

Kiwans Honor Old Members

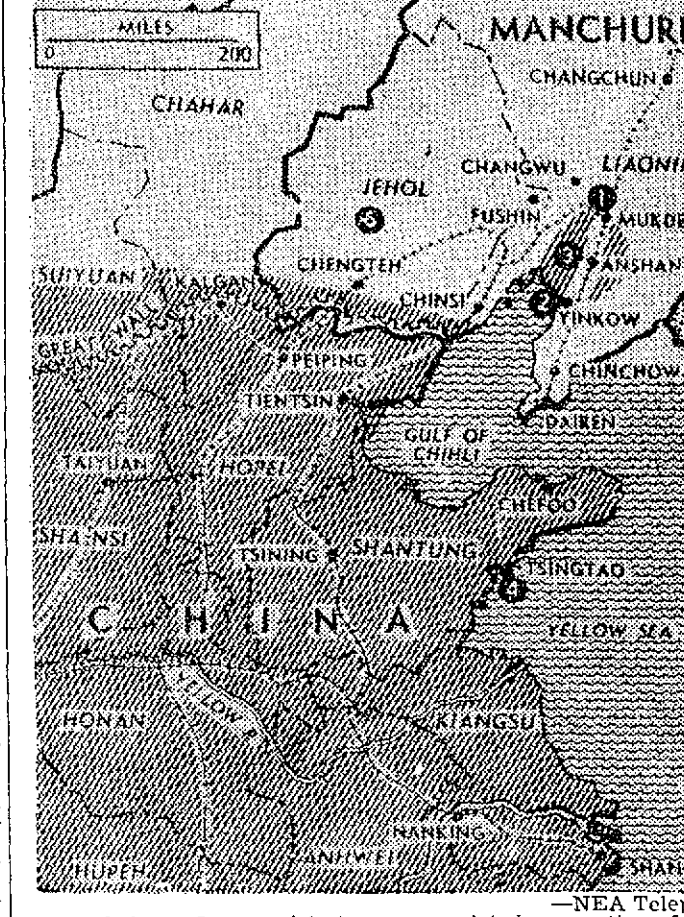

Past presidents and old members were presented today at the regular Kiwanis Club meeting with Frank Horton in charge.

John P. Cox, first president of the organization and R. V. Burdett, Sr., third president of the club, discussed history and events of the club.

The local club was organized 20 years ago with 35 members, 13 now living in Hope. Nine of that group were guests of the club today. —B. R. Hamby, Jeff Murphy, J. W. Stuckland, Harry Hawthorne, Paul Lewis, J. N. Harbin, Alex. Davis, Mr. Herndon and Mr. Cox.

Aaron Tollett was introduced as a new member.

Democrat Party Loyalty to Get Test in State

Little Rock, Nov. 2 — (AP) Fairly heavy voting in today's general election was reported from some sections of Arkansas, but the weather threatened to hold down the total vote.

Skies were cloudy, rain fell in some sections and scattered showers were predicted for others.

In Little Rock, where no rain had fallen by noon, the voting was considered heavy for a general election although it was about 25 per cent off the early pace of the 1940 Democratic primary. An all-time record Arkansas vote was cast in that primary.

Approximately 4,500 voters had marked ballots in Little Rock and North Little Rock before noon.

Despite rain, the voting was fairly heavy in Fayetteville and in the northwest Arkansas, which has a heated congressional race at stake. Heavy early voting also was reported at Fort Smith.

The least reported interest was at Hot Springs, where Dewey seeks Harry S. Truman, what things will be changed?

What about Dewey's first 100 days? Will there be a new honeymoon between the White House and Capitol Hill? Will it last?

Dewey has not indicated that his election, if it comes, will bring any onslaught against basic New Deal laws. In fact he has promised to expand some of them. But Truman went all out in his campaign to embrace the whole New Deal.

What is the story of the New Deal?

It was born here in Washington in the early 1930s. Days after FDR took office, March 4, 1933, the nation's economy was in desperate straits. Banks were failing. Farmers were being dispossessed. Bread lines were commonplace in the cities.

The cry over the land then was: Action, action, action! Immediately upon taking the oath as president, Roosevelt ordered a three-day bank holiday — closing banks for three days to stop failures. He then called Congress into emergency session. It convened March 9, 1933 — not knowing what it was going to do.

But the White House brain trust, headed by Professor Raymond Moley, was at work around the president.

Emergency measures went to Capitol Hill in rapid order. The Federal Reserve Act was passed. The Federal Emergency Relief Administration and later the WPA (Works Projects Administration) were set up to create work, with government money, for the unemployed.

Still later, the CCC (Civilian Conservation Corps), the PWA (Public Works Administration) and the NYA (National Youth Administration) were organized.

Large Group to Attend Forestry Study

Hempstead County will have a good delegation at the Southern Forest Experiment Station near Crosscut at Farmer's Week study day Thursday, Nov. 4, 1933. The station is a major source of farm income, the "Farm Forestry Forty" will prove of extreme interest to the Hempstead County delegation. These 40 blocks of timberland have been managed as though they were on an actual farm. The produce or growth from each 40 made during the past year will be harvested as "logs," pulpwood, fuelwood, etc., and stacked for inspection. The coastal plains area of which we are a part produces quality pine at a very large rate.

The Hempstead County group, which will leave Hope at 7 o'clock Thursday morning returning late in the afternoon, includes: W. B. Nelson of Washington; Syd McMath of Hempstead County; Jack Banker; Harold Gunter, Odell Luck, W. J. Gunter, James Gunter, as representatives of Gunter Lumber Company; Russell Llewellyn, E. C. Adams, and Aubrey Enoch, as On-the-farm Vocational Agricultural teachers of Hope; Cecil Bittle and Mrs. Bittle of the Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station; Herbert Greenhaw, William Cissell, and Elvin Betts of Spring Hill; Dalton Hulsey of Washington; and a number of other local men.

Unhappily, the group will be unable to see the major scenic spot of Cash of Hickory Shade, as it is closed to the public. But the group will see the Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station; Herbert Greenhaw, William Cissell, and Elvin Betts of Spring Hill; Dalton Hulsey of Washington; and a number of other local men.

Record Vote Seen as America Goes to Polls to Pick President, Congress

Nation Wonders Whether the U.S. Will Slam Door on 16-Year Democratic Rule

Washington, Nov. 2 — (AP) This nerve center of government waits today to learn whether America will slam shut the books on 16 years of Democratic rule, an era that dealt with the world's greatest depression and the worst war in history.

The city is heavy with speculation — and recollections. Those who remember the early days of the New Deal and its architect, Franklin D. Roosevelt, are asking: "What will Dewey mean? What will be changed?"

What about Dewey's first 100 days? Will there be a new honeymoon between the White House and Capitol Hill? Will it last?

Fog Again Hits But Not Poison

By FRANK K. NOLL

Donora, Pa., Nov. 2 (UP) — A dense fog settled over this Monongahela river milltown today but officials said it did not carry the threat of the 1930s of 19 persons over the week end.

The heavy, damp fog hung like a mist in the listless air, blotting out streets and buildings. But health authorities reported that no deaths for aid had been received from persons with asthmatic or cardiac conditions such as those stricken three days ago.

Health authorities said the fact that it was fog and not smog (a heavy condensation of smoke, dust and fog that enveloped the city today probably saved residents from another epidemic of death and sickness that struck last Friday and Saturday night.

Rain had purified the air and the zinc plant had halted all smelting, thus preventing the fog from absorbing poisonous gases and trapping them near the earth, officials said.

Dr. William Roumas, Donora board of health physician, who treated many of the 600 victims of the week-end disaster, said only the rain prevented the death toll from reaching 1,000. He said the airborne "silent killer" carried in the cloud of smog paralyzed the breathing apparatus of its victims. There would have been a thousand dead had not the rain cleared the air. He told an emergency meeting of the city council that he believed there was no danger of a pneumonia epidemic and advised persons affected by the smog to remain in bed until the atmosphere cleared. Some 20 persons still were hospitalized and it was believed they would be kept in oxygen tents until the fog lifted.

One of two cases of pneumonia already have been reported. Elizabeth Ostrander, secretary of the Donora Board of Health, reported. Dr. L. Alexander Hope, director of health at nearby Pittsburgh, also warned of the danger of pneumonia. Experience in Pittsburgh, he said, showed that the incidence of pneumonia always followed a heavy concentration of smog.

Captain Credited With Saving 59 Passengers
Norfolk, Va., Nov. 1. —(UP)—The captain of a coastwise steamer today was credited with saving the lives of all but one of his 59 passengers when his ship crashed into a fully-loaded oil tanker in heavy fog off Old Point Comfort early yesterday.

But Capt. E. H. Eaton, whose frantic maneuvering of the "District of Columbia" kept her from smashing straight into the tanker and setting her 100,000 barrels of gasoline afire, sobbed that "now I've got this woman's blood on my hands."

The dead woman, who was crushed in her stateroom when the vessels collided, was identified as Miss Susan E. McWhorter, 24, of Atlanta, Ga.

In early December at the Ross Avenue School of Nursing in Dallas.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Hope High School and the St. Paul school is employed in Dallas.

The groom-elect graduated from Dallas High School and Southern Methodist University and at present is employed in Dallas.

UN May Hold Action on Palestine
Paris, Nov. 1. —(UP)—United Nations delegates believed today that the Palestine issue might be shelved by the general assembly until after Jan. 20 if Gov. Thomas E. Dewey wins the presidential election tomorrow.

Diplomats said such a postponement was inevitable unless Dewey in event of victory, clarified for the assembly his views on a final Palestine settlement and on commitments made before Jan. 20 by the present American delegation.

If no decision on Palestine is reached in this session of the general assembly, these sources said, a special assembly meeting probably would be called for February or March at Lake Success, N. Y.

It was hoped, however, that a Republican victory would be followed by a strong statement making clear that Dewey would stand committed to the decisions taken here before his inauguration Jan. 20.

American delegates were certain some kind of emergency improvisation would be made in the American delegation here if Dewey is elected.

It was expected that John Foster Dulles, believed slated for Secretary of State if Dewey wins, would be given nominal control of the delegation's policies on major issues.

Secretary George C. Marshall would remain titular chief of the delegation.

It seemed likely that Dulles would be authorized to make a statement clarifying for the rest of the United Nations how the Dewey team stands on such major questions as the Italian colonies, the Berlin crisis and Palestine.

The security council, aroused by the latest fighting in Northern Palestine in which the Jews were reported to have seized all of Galilee, scheduled another meeting on the Palestine problem for Wednesday.

There were no meetings today as All Saints' Day is a national holiday in France.

When the council meets Wednesday it will have to consider the completed version of the controversial Anglo-Chinese proposal for considering possible economic sanctions against Jews unless they give up their recent gains in Palestine.

Informed observers predicted Russia would veto the resolution.

Memphis, Nov. 1. —(UP)—J. R. Hester, 69 year old operator of a tourist court, and his 56 year old wife were bludgeoned today while asleep in their beds. Police said that robbery apparently was the motive.

Mrs. Hester struggled from her bed and telephoned for help. The attackers had gained entrance through a window.

Y. W. A. Meets Monday Night
Members of the Y.W.A., Intermediate G.A.'s, Jr. G.A.'s and Jr. R.A.'s of the First Baptist church met in the Educational building Monday night for their regular monthly business and social meeting. Mrs. Charles Reynerson opened the meeting with prayer.

Circle 6 of the W.M.S. of the church served a delicious supper plate with coffee to 50 members. The dining room was decorated with orange and black halloween decorations. The R.A.'s were honored at the supper meeting as next week will be R.A. Focus Week.

Following the supper meeting the groups adjourned to their study rooms. The Y.W.A. meeting was called to order by the president, Miss Mary Ethel Perkins. The Y.W.A. song "O Zion Haste" was sung by the group followed by prayer by Sue O'Steen. Eleven members answered roll call and one new member, Miss Edith Ward was welcomed into Y.W.A.

During the business session, committee reports were heard and the November Community Mission was discussed. It was voted to meet on Monday, November 22 at 7 o'clock in the Educational Building for the regular mission study which will be led by Mrs. Aaron Tollett. Mrs. S. A. Whitlow assigned parts to the Y.W.A. members for Stewardship Night, November 10 at the church.

In the absence of the program chairman, Miss Eugenia Sue Hassell, Miss Betty Martin gave an interesting and inspiring story on "Modern Ruth and Ester" by Miss Margaret Lindsay.

DOROTHY DIX Burned-Out Passion

There is no question that I am asked often by wives than how they can revive a dead love and get back the men they have lost. The answer to that pitiful question is, sadly, that it cannot be done. Once a woman has lost a man, he has gone beyond recall. Once love has fled, it is gone forever. Once passion has burned itself out, there is no kindling its dead ashes and blowing them into flame again. No woman is miracle worker enough to breathe the breath of life again into the corpse of a dead love.

It is easy enough for a woman to make a man fall in love with her the first time, but it is a stunt that she cannot repeat. Once he has awakened from love's young dream, she cannot hypnotize him back to a state where he sees her as the One and Only woman in the world. All her arts and wiles are practiced upon him in vain. The beauty he once thought so ravishing has ceased to appeal to him. The little tricks and manners he thought so cute leave him cold. Where he once saw only perfection, now he perceives only blemishes.

No one knows why he loves nor why he ceases to love. It is not a matter of volition. It is a matter of taste, and we have no more control over that than we have over any other phenomenon of nature.

No Explanation
Often a man who has loved a woman can no more explain, even to himself, why he has ceased to love her than he can why he has ceased to care for the food he once craved. Nor can he any more help it or make himself want her than he could the all-day suckers he was so crazy about in his boyhood.

It would save women a lot of heartache if they would only face the fact that there is no reviving a dead love, and that there is absolutely nothing that they can do about it except to accept the finality. To reproach the man with his fickleness is folly, since he cannot help it. To weep over him and appeal to his pity because he has wearied of you only makes him the more tired. To pursue him only makes him flee from you the faster.

It is the part of wisdom and dignity for a woman to let the man who has ceased to care for her go in peace, since he is lost to her anyway, and for her to center her interests on aims and aspirations that will fill her life. There are many things in the world better worth striving for than the affections of an inconstant man.

But there is one comfort for wives, and that is that while it is impossible to resuscitate a dead love, it is easy enough to keep one alive. A man obviously is in love with a woman when he marries her, or else he would not take upon himself the responsibilities of marriage. If he falls out of love with her, nine times out of ten it is because she has been too lazy, or too stupid to take the trouble to keep him thinking that he was the luckiest man in the world when he got her for a wife.

Convicts Tunnel Way Out of Prison

Pittsburgh, Nov. 1. —(UP)—Three convicts tunneled their way out of Western penitentiary and escaped today, Warden Stanley Ashe reported.

The break was discovered about

7:30 a. m., less than an hour after the trio was believed to have finally dug out, Ashe said.

The convicts were identified as Eugene West, of Somerset County; William R. Wynn, Washington county; and Andrew Lee White, of Allegheny county. All were serving terms for burglary.

Warden Ashe said the men dug through the boiler house floor, tunneled under a walk and came up outside the prison wall. Police and sheriff's deputies began an immediate search of the area and sent out a three-star alarm. The three were believed to be still wearing prison clothes.

West and White were both long-term convicts. Prison officials said they were uncertain whether the trio dug the tunnel with boiler house tools or if makeshift tools had been used. The tunnel opened into a vacant lot at the rear of the community house near the prison wall.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

By King Features Syndicate.

New York, Nov. 1 — It is important that the boys who join the army as draftees for the Roosevelt memorial day with Russia shall get their spinach, but no vulgarly but their own and write home once a week. But it will be very hard to hire good officers if the public continues to hold them all arbitrarily up to contempt as an incompetent, parasitic class.

Soldiering is a man's business even when boys are employed. The Union army in the Civil War was younger on the average in the ranks, than the West Point football team of today. Stray news-pictures from home and there show that kids of sixteen and up are still out hunting other kids of sixteen and up with realistic guns and hard ammunition.

There is abroad in the United States a propaganda against officers which, with a little more emphasis might do the men who are needed most from entering of continuing military careers. A first-class man won't take that kind of abuse or disrespect. And when the rate of pay is considered in comparison with that of construction workers, the man with the true qualifications for rank must reflect that he is only a peacetime Tommy Atkins himself.

Production, a colonel's $125 a day regarding competence or reproduction, a colonel's $125 a week after 20 years service is not impressive. This time it will be necessary to start over with the induction of the new federal government. Big wars have always lowered the average competence, character and reputation of the officers, although they suffered far less in these particular fields in the first world war than they did in the second one. There were far fewer temporary officers. Woodrow Wilson had a personal code as austere as that of the West Point corps of cadets and of the corps of officers of the army in normal conditions.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, on the other hand, debauched not only his own office by his open contempt for honesty as an institution but every other office from the superior court to the park service.

He revealed in his title of commander-in-chief, but the C-in-C family had had their feet in the trough for years, fattening on the by-product of our highest elective officials in a way that would have disgusted even Warren G. Harding. He let the air force pull Elliott out of the cruel war to build through a contract for Howard Hughes and accept from Hughes the equivalent of thousands of dollars in feasting and boozing. Under the 95th and 96th Articles of War, Elliott could have been court-martialed. He defaulted his debts to John Hartford and others, which is a high charge entailing dismissal and in no way the favors of Howard Hughes, the victor of a direct order and warning from General H. H. Arnold. General Arnold should have made charges, but he was holding his job by Roosevelt's whimsical favor. Had he made a move, Roosevelt would have quashed the charges against Elliott and Arnold would have been sent to the University of Missouri as an instructor.

Everyone knew this and the enlisted soldier, being the fool and army-wise, realized that all life was a racket in the army. The outrageous cheapening and inflation of rank to accommodate Hollywood and big business, limited Dead lawyers from Harvard Law and thousands of restless white-collar bums who were having wife trouble was a calamity to the prestige of command. Captains became majors and majors became colonels who were absolutely useless for military duty. But they consumed the best rations and whiskey, broke up more than their quota of homes, including, in many cases, their own, and occupied the best quarters according to rank, all to the credit of the combat officers and soldiers.

It was, altogether, a disgraceful imposition on the fighters to throw commissions to such sightseers and to let the injury continue now in the most serious of the against officers. The Roosevelt policy also continues today in the regular services all the way from the office of the secretary of Defense down through the desks which are known by the coterie name of echelons. The fall of victims with long and honorable service whose careers were stopped dead because they wouldn't play politics is the roster of the silent program.

One thing is essential if the decency of rank is to be revived. Men who have the moral quality to pay outward respect to morals, good manners and all the attributes of a gentleman brought into contempt, must be encouraged, not mocked by bolstering drunkards in the high ranks. The honor code of the military academy used to influence the conduct of many officers throughout our life. In the Roosevelt army it became a professional handicap.

All things being equal, a decent man makes a better officer than a swine. The swine have had their season and many a one clanks the mud with the statures banner of ill-gotten medals. If we don't revive morality and protect men of honor, we will not have an army but a mob no better than any wave of Roosevelt's pickets.

Key Tech Back May Be Lost for Season

Russellville, Nov. 2 — (AP) — Half-back Gene Hall may be lost to the Arkansas Tech football team for the remainder of the season. Coach Raymond Burnett said today.

Hall suffered a dislocated bone in his right leg in last Saturday night's game with Ouachita.

Hogs to Break Attendance Mark at Home

By CARL BELL

Little Rock, Nov. 2 — (AP) — A new attendance record for home games of the University of Arkansas football team is assured this year.

The Razorbacks have attracted 35,000 fans in three games, and four more home appearances on the schedule will set a new high of 44,354 set last fall.

Two things are responsible. First of course, is the new Arkansas stadium here, which has a far larger seating capacity than any other plant in the state and is centrally located. The second is that Clyde Scott, the Porkers' great back is a greater drawing attraction than ever before.

A season-opening bonanza with Abilene Christian drew 29,000 persons to the Memorial stadium. Three more games with Rice, Tulsa and William & Mary—scheduled in the stadium this season. The fourth home game, with Southern Methodist, will match the home field of 29,000. "I've averaged almost eight yards per yard from scrimmage and has a fine forward passing record. . . . A younger brother is blocking back. That college fellow from Texas, 145-pounds probably explains why young Jake isn't playing for Carolina.

Last Word
Ted Lyons, who seems a bit unhappy about the way the Chicago White Sox handled his "resignation" as manager, has this to say about the Sox in Vinton, La.: "I've never quit a job in my life and had no thought of quitting this one as long as the club was down."

Rose Bowl Likely to Get Second Best
Pasadena, Cal., Nov. 2. — (UP) — Long-smouldering objections to the Big Nine sending its second or third-best football team to the Rose Bowl broke into the open today.

The Tournament of Roses Association, sponsors of the New Year's day classic, was reported preparing a protest to the Pacific Coast Conference which provides the host school in the annual game. The association's executive committee voted to instruct its football sub-committee to find out why the Big Nine can't change its rules so the championship team comes West Year's Day.

As the agreement between the two conferences now stands, no team from the Big Nine can play in the Rose Bowl more than once during the first three years of the five-year contract.

Michigan met and defeated Southern California in the last Rose Bowl game and Michigan is leading the Big Nine again. But where they belong to get the bid again even if they go through the season undefeated.

The Tournament of Roses Association, interested chiefly in presenting the most attractive football possible, is fearful that the oldest bowl game may lose prestige if it features a second or third-best Midwest team against the Pacific Coast Conference champion, regardless who wins the game.

Former Lawyer of El Dorado Succumbs
El Dorado, Nov. 2 — (UP) — Funeral rites will be held tomorrow for William Elbert Patterson, a prominent 76-year-old El Dorado attorney and former judge who died here yesterday.

Patterson was born in Camden and attended Henderson-Brown college at Arkadelphia and Cumberland University. He served as mayor of El Dorado from 1905 to 1917 and as judge of the 13th judicial district for one term in 1913. Surviving are his wife, one daughter, three sisters and one brother.

Notre Dame Displaces Michigan
New York, Nov. 2 — (AP) — The old Notre Dame-Michigan argument is on again with the Irish out front by a slender three-point margin in the weekly Associated Press poll of football writers.

Displacing the Wolverines by a total of 1,762 points to 1,759, Notre Dame actually ran behind Michigan in the matter of first place votes, 68-66. The South Bendiers picked the margin on second and third place ballots.

North Carolina, running a strong third, is a definite threat to both leaders with 26 first place votes, and 1,456 points.

Army is the No. 4 team in the poll with 1,249 points after its 497-point victory over Virginia Tech.

California, the Pacific Coast team among the nine who still are unbeaten and untied, is fifth with 1,132.

Georgia Tech again is ranked sixth with 1,099. Back of seventh place Penn with 375 points, is eighth place is Southern Methodist, whose Donak Walker had a big afternoon in a 21-6 victory over Texas 18 points total 432. Missouri holds ninth spot with 362 points and North Carolina moved into 10th place with 371 points as the strength of its 21-7 decision over Ohio State.

Missouri drew five first place votes and Oklahoma two. The Sooners finished 14th with 37 points.

Bob Hope Missed the Boat — In Fact the Gangplank Too
Hollywood, Nov. 1 — (AP) — Bob Hope missed the boat; in fact, he even missed the gangplank.

He was running up a prop gangplank of the set of his currently shooting picture when he fell last Friday. An injury to his left leg then was considered minor.

But his physician found a blood clot had formed. So now he's Bob (ordered) to bed. Dr. Badger, a Doctor (at least a week) Hope.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh E. Fullerton, Jr.

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov. 2 — (AP) — A few noses are slightly out of joint around this swank resort, which exists mainly for golf and sleep. . . . It seems that after the dates were set for the 44th North and South Open tournament, several outstanding players were diverted to a PGA sponsored event in Hawaii. . . . It's a matter of prestige. . . . Pinehurst, with no profitable galleries and no desire for them, won't meet the PGA minimum purse of $10,000. . . . So the PGA won't "sponsor" this event. . . . After all, this is our 46th year. . . . The tournament is older than the PGA. . . . commented one Pinehurst spokesman. "This is just a vacation for a lot of players; they aren't bothered by crowds and they have a good time." . . . Never-stays apparently can do without a vacation. Of the first ten on the money-winning list this season, the only ones here are Johnny Palmer and Clayton Heafner, almost local boys, and big Vic Ghezzi who registers from Englewood, N. J.

Wade in the Balance
Call it what you like, but the son of North Carolina University's sports publicity man, Jake Wade, is the leading ground gainer at Delaware College. Jake Wade, Jr., 145-pound David's son, has averaged almost eight yards per yard from scrimmage and has a fine forward passing record. . . . A younger brother is blocking back. That college fellow from Texas, 145-pounds probably explains why young Jake isn't playing for Carolina.

Joke Backfires Not So Funny Anymore

Detroit, Nov. 1.—(AP)—It seemed like a good gag at the time but Alphonse Harper of Highland Park, said it wasn't a bit funny any more.

He told Detroit police that an acquaintance tried to borrow a dollar from him on the East Side early today. Harper reached in his pocket and handed the man a $1,000 bill, according to his complaint.

Waltz into Darkness

THE STORY

Time, 1880. Place, New Orleans. Louis Durand, 37, a well-to-do bachelor, has been corresponding with Miss Julia Russell, whom he has never seen. He has proposed marriage and she has accepted. According to her picture, Miss Russell is dark-haired, strong-featured and no longer young. Durand goes down to the dock to meet the boat that is to bring her from St. Louis. He is dumfounded when an exquisite young blond creature introduces herself as Julia. She explains her little deceit by saying she didn't want him to fall for just a pretty face.

IV

Five persons gathered in a solemn little conclave about the pulpit. Four facing it, the fifth speaking low. The first two of the four, side by side; the second two flanking him.

"And do you, Julia Russell, take this man, Louis Durand, to be your lawful wedded husband?"

"To cleave to, forsaking all others—

"To love, honor and obey—

"For better or for worse—

"In sickness and in health—

"Until death do ye part?"

Silence.

Then like a tiny bell, no bigger than a thimble in all the vastness of that church, but clear and silver-pure—

"I do."

"Now the ring, please. Place it upon the bride's finger."

Durand reaches behind him. The best man produces it, puts it in his hand, Durand takes it. Durand brings it to the tapered point of her finger.

There is a momentary awkwardness. Her finger measurement was taken by a string, knotted at the proper place and sent enclosed in a letter. But there must have been an error, either in the knotting or whispers to her. "It's getting on to twelve."

"Yes. One more dance together first. Ask them to play again. And then we'll lose ourselves, without coming back to the table."

The house was empty, waiting. Waiting to begin its history, which, for a house, is that of its occupants. Oil lamps had been left lighted, one to a room, by someone, most likely Aunt Sarah, before leaving their little headed flames, safe within glass chimneys, winking just high enough to dispense the darkness and cast an amber glow. The same blend of wood shavings, paint, and putty, spiced with a dash of floor varnish, was still in evidence, but to a far lesser degree now, for carpets had been laid over the raw floors, drapes hung athwart the window casings.

Someone had brought flowers into the parlor.

A clock had been wound up and started on its course.

Everything was ready.

A house, waiting for a man and his wife to come and claim it.

The resonant, cuplike sound of a horse's hoofs drew near in the silence outside, came to a halt on a double down-beat. Axes creaked with a shift of weight, then settled again. A human tongue clicked professionally, then the hoofs recommenced, thinned away into silence once more.

There was a slight scrape of leather on paving stone, a mischievous little whisper, like a secret told by one foot to another.

A moment afterward a key turned in the outside of the door. They stood there revealed in the opening, Durand and she. Lined amber by the light before them in the house, framed by a panel of night sky sanded with stars behind them and over their heads. They were motionless, as oblivious of what lay before them as of what lay behind them. Face turned to meet face, his arms about her, her hands on his shoulders.

Nothing moved, neither they nor the stars at their back nor the open-doored house waiting to receive them. It was one of those moments never to be captured again.

The kiss at the threshold of marriage.

Ignored Robber Finally Gives Up Attempt

Chicago, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Halloway, spooks, goblins and the like were too much competition—for a robber at Jacobson's South Side Tavern.

The robber told Felix Casey the 70-year-old bartender, to hand over the money. Casey took him over. He looked like the bobby prize winner at a costume party. Casey ignored him.

The gunman flashed his pistol at the customers. They wouldn't mind either.

No one realized he meant business—until he gave up and ran out of the door—empty-handed.
